Spotlight on . . .
Embracing Life as You Age

The FCS Extension program co-hosted an arthritis seminar with Taylor Regional Hospital. A local specialist presented a program and fielded questions from the 82 attendees. Extension Homemakers served foods rich in arthritis fighting nutrients as refreshments. Educational booths included blood pressure monitoring and massage techniques. Nineteen people registered for Mindful Movement, a Get Moving Kentucky program taught three times a week for six weeks. Eight people attended at least 10 sessions and 15 came at least five times. Participants learned to warm up, stretch properly, gradually increase repetitions, walk correctly, lift properly and safely use steps, which improved balance and flexibility.1
