SPOTLIGHT ON...

MAKING BENEFICIAL LIFESTYLE CHOICES

Harrison County Extension partnered with 12 community agencies and numerous volunteers to sponsor the second Healthy Informed Men (HIM) program. Sixty-nine men attended the event, one of only a few such Extension programs in the state. They heard presentations on such topics as preventing colon cancer and prostate and kidney problems. The Family and Consumer Sciences (FCS) agent convened the group after receiving numerous requests for this type of program. The agent served as chairperson and secured more than $1,000 in funding. The Harrison County agriculture and 4-H agents worked with the FCS agent to promote, recruit, and evaluate the program. Afterward, attendees indicated they would begin keeping better health records, get health screenings, have physical exams and change their lifestyle.¹
