SPOTLIGHT ON...

PROMOTING HEALTHY HOMES AND COMMUNITIES

Reducing energy expenditures in the home is important to local residents in Marion County. A simple step to reduce energy costs is to use compact florescent lights (CFLs). These lights can improve air quality and use 75% less electricity than incandescent bulbs. To encourage use of CFLs, a lesson on home lighting and energy saving tips was presented by an Extension housing associate. Two hundred and twelve women attended the class at the Home Décor Expo. Sixty-five percent of the respondents purchased CFLs. As a result, the average monthly savings on electricity was $5. One person summed up her benefit by saying, "Energy saving tips and CFLs are going to save us more money in the long run."¹
