SPOTLIGHT ON...

ACCESSING NUTRITIOUS FOOD

Living on a budget has become very real to Henderson County residents who are coping with high unemployment and tough economic times. Food purchases, a major expense in a family budget, can be reduced through planning and using coupons. To teach wise food shopping a couponing class was offered by the Family and Consumer Sciences Agent. Eighty-six participants attended five classes, with many of them reporting spending over $200 a week on groceries. The goal of this program was to cut monthly grocery bills by 25% per month. As a result, participants started a club that meets monthly to exchange coupons and share buying information. Members say they are saving $50-$100 on each grocery trip.¹
