OUR PEOPLE

ACCESSING NUTRITIOUS FOOD

While the approximate of 23.4%, the Monroe County Family and Consumer Sciences Agent provided programming to limited resource families. The agent provided over 900 low-income families with food-stamp nutrition education on a bimonthly basis at the commodity food distribution. Sample consumption at the commodity food distribution increased from 25% to 40%. 57 youth ages three to five participated in "Jump Into Foods and Fitness" and "Literacy, Eating, and Activity for Preschool," and at the end of the school year, 80% knew basic food groups and could differentiate between healthy and junk foods. Over 1,000 limited resource individuals learned to serve more nutritious meals, keep food safe, use coupon, budget, try new recipes, and use local food resources.
