SPOTLIGHT ON ...

MIDDLE SCHOOL TASTE TESTS

The 2010 changes in school lunch standards provided an opportunity for the Bracken County Family and Consumer Sciences agent to encourage students to try new foods. The agent offered a four-lesson series to all middle-school students. The 12 classes reached 240 students. The vegetable lesson focused on the different colors of vegetables and the health benefits of each. Students were encouraged to touch and smell various vegetables. Peppers, radishes, carrots, and celery were offered for tasting. Of the 85% who had never tasted a radish, 30% said that radishes were not that bad and that they would try them again.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
