SPOTLIGHT ON ...

SENIOR SCAM JAM

Studies show one in five seniors are targeted for money scams often due to their retirement nest eggs. Collaborative efforts of the local senior center, Kentucky Department of Financial Institutions, and the Breckinridge County Extension Service resulted in "Senior Scam Jam". Information was presented on mail fraud, bad loans, identity theft, investment, telemarketing, and Internet safety. Also highlighted were health care reform, food/nutrition, and other services available to seniors. Thirty participants attended the program. In their evaluations, seniors rated the program very high. Participants reported they were better prepared to protect themselves from fraud. One participant said, "It served as a reminder of what I should do, and I learned about new scams and heard information I didn't know."

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
