SPOTLIGHT ON ... TRACK PROMOTES PHYSICAL ACTIVITY

Carter County has one of the highest rates of diabetes-related death in the state. A community survey showed that a contributing factor is an environment that fails to promote physical activity. To address this issue, the Family and Consumer Sciences agent collaborated with a wellness coalition, a recreational alliance, and local government and grants, to conduct programs promoting physical activity. As a result, the City of Grayson now has its first walking track. To encourage use of the track, the FCS Extension agent started a walking club to challenge residents to use the track. The track provides a safe environment for families to get moving in Carter County.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family’s largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
