SPOTLIGHT ON …

COUPONING 101

During difficult financial times, families are looking for ways to save money and make better use of available resources. The Clinton County Cooperative Extension Service offered seven Couponing 101 classes to provide hands-on opportunities for 87 youth and adults. The program focused on menu planning, creating master shopping lists, product price books, coupon policies, shopping locally, and food safety. Guided grocery shopping tours focused on unit prices, label reading, and coupon utilization. The 12-week post-evaluations found that 94% shared program information with others, 83% ate more meals at home, and 87% saved an average of $25.33 on their weekly grocery bill as a result of practical application of strategies taught in the program.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family’s largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
