SPOTLIGHT ON ...

REACHING BURMESE FAMILIES

Daviess County recently has seen a major increase in the number of Burmese immigrants. Many people of this minority population do not speak English and lack skills and knowledge in the areas of parenting and nutrition. The Daviess County Cooperative Extension Service partnered with the local international center to lead educational classes for parents in a small group setting. Twelve families participated in the biweekly, one-hour sessions. After the classes, surveys showed that 67% were able to recall information learned in past sessions and said they had applied one or more changes in their daily life. The program has shown a direct positive impact and continues to be a success.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
