SPOTLIGHT ON ...

FARMERS MARKET

To battle a 40% obesity rate, Elliott County Extension agriculture and FCS agents partnered to increase vendors' income at the local farmers market and increase consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables by local residents. Grant money was used to give farmers market gift cards to participants in health and nutrition programs, resulting in $852 paid to the vendors. FCS and Ag agents also partnered to manage the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Senior Farmers Market Coupons. Redemption rate of these coupons in 2013 was 89%, giving $6,720 in revenue to vendors, making the total income to farmers $7,572 due to Extension efforts. This shows a rise in the consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables in the senior diet.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
