SPOTLIGHT ON ...

STAND UP TO FALLING

The chances of falling and being seriously injured in a fall increase with age. Nearly one-third of Kentucky seniors fall each year. The "Stand Up to Falling" program highlights ways to reduce this risk and help seniors maintain their independence and quality of life. The program was presented at Fulton and Hickman County Senior Citizen centers, with 29 attending. The results showed 100% learned more about how to reduce the risk of falling, 85% planned to make changes to their home, 80% planned to review medication with a doctor or pharmacist, and 100% planned to be more physically active. However, 48% were insecure about their ability to get up from a fall by themselves.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
