SPOTLIGHT ON ...

LEAP - SCHOOL READINESS FOR PRESCHOOLERS

Research shows that children who receive adequate preparation before they start school are more successful throughout their education. As a result of this research, the Johnson County Cooperative Extension Office provided 1,388 preschoolers in Johnson County with tools to begin school successfully. The existing Literacy, Eating and Activity for Preschoolers (LEAP) program was modified to better target a younger age group. A guide outlining school readiness standards was developed and delivered to at least 840 parents and seven schools. Training on school readiness was presented to local child care providers, reaching 30 child care providers and 250 children.

Housing has long been recognized as a basic human need. Yet, because housing is often a family's largest expense and largest debt, it can be a stumbling block for many. Safe, lower-cost housing options are often limited for struggling families, and this can lead them into crisis. Family and Consumer Sciences Extension helps people improve home safety, lessen their environmental footprint, and strengthen financial stability. It also helps communities promote healthy lifestyles throughout the lifespan by supporting strong family home environments. Please tell us ways you think we can do more.
