SPOTLIGHT: MORGAN COUNTY

Adulthood 101

The life of the high school senior is full of “adult” decisions: selecting a college, picking a major, choosing a career path, and moving out of their parents’ home. Morgan County’s FCS Extension agent and 4-H Youth Development agents in Morgan County decided to offer Adulthood 101 with the aid of community partners, teachers, and fellow agents. Classes such as sewing, money management, cooking, laundry, job interview skills, healthy relationships, and organization were offered along with basic first aid and vehicle maintenance. Of the students who participated, 82 percent said that the skills they learned would be beneficial to their lives after high school. Senior participants reported gained confidence in vehicle maintenance, college preparation, and job interview skills.
