

GriefWork: Guides for Survival and Growth

Kentucky Hospice Directory

Hospice is a nonprofit organization that exists to provide support and care for persons in the last phase of an incurable disease. Their services do not end with the death of the patient. Following the loss of a loved one, hospice bereavement counselors continue to provide care and services for surviving family members.

To help in these situations, hospice services include: individual grief counseling, letters of support, telephone support, grief education, community education programs, holiday programs, and support groups to help the surviving family members adjust to their loss. Please be aware that the services a given hospice can provide may be limited by size of staff, funding, and the public demand for assistance.
