Spotlight on . . .

Making Beneficial Lifestyle Choices

The Literacy, Eating, and Activity for Preschoolers for Health (LEAP) Program focuses on teaching children the importance of proper nutrition through literacy. This program was presented to 45 children enrolled in the Head Start program. Of the participants, 100% of children enjoyed reading the books and tasting new recipes, 89% learned about new foods, 91% learned about the benefits of eating a good diet, and 84% learned about foods grown in a garden and how to grow a garden. The children learned through the reading of the children's books, seeing demonstrations using the recipes, and tasting the food prepared.¹
